Excerpt: . . . have the same device-embroidered in the right angle of the colours. Long live the conquerors of Amelia 1 Dated, Head-quarters, San Fernandina, 1st July, 1817, 7 and 1. Gregor Mgrkoor. Singularity was one of those entitled, under the proclamation of M4Grcgor, to wear the embroidered shield on his left arm, a the conquerors of Amelia No occasion for pa ticul ir dut. nction occurred in a battle, where there was no fighting; but his zeal then, and activity against the Royalists afterward, evinced his devotion to the enterprise. Aided by; a small band of puro and ardent spirits, he set fire to the spacious mansion of Fernandez, a wealthy Spaniard, who had been guilty of not joining the patriots. He also burst into several private houses, and seized the money, silver goblets, tea-spoons, and whatever valuables he and his comrades could bear off. This I am aware has sometimes been denominated plundering, or stigmatized as robbery and stealing; but I should like to know whether ethics can draw any distinction between appropriating public stores belonging to a people collectively, and appropriating private stores belonging to the same people individually. Does not political economy teach us that national wealth is the sum of individual wealth As MGregor had forbidden the violation of private property, my friend managed his partisan operations with proper secrecy and decency, though ho well know that troops wcro too much in request to have their conduct very closely scanned. As booty was...
